Chief of Police McNichol yesterday received a letter from the chief at Newport, Ky., acknowledging the receipt of the picture of Frank Roma, taken at Fairmont, and conveying the information that it is not the portrait of Charles Poli, alias Bohne, the Italian wanted there for killing William Sprouts on March 19.

The following transfers of real estate were admitted to record in Clerk Hook's office yesterday:

E., late graduate of the National School of Elocution and Oratory, of Philadelphia, will give a recital at the auditorium, at the Moundsville camp ground, Tuesday evening, July 19. Miss Steinfeld will be assisted by Mrs. Flora B. Williams, Mr. Charles Zulauf, Prof. Henry Hartmann and the mandolin and guitar club. Miss Steinfeld will give a number of recitals at the various summer resorts during the season.

Then the Fountain will Play.

Secretary Baird, of the city water board, yesterday explained to an INTELLIGENCER reporter why it is not expedient to turn the water on in the Paxton fountain for a day or two. The old reservoir is the only dependence of the works, and it is half full of mud. Under these circumstances Superintendent Cummings is economizing in water in every way possible. On Friday night the basin will be thoroughly cleaned, and after that is done the water will be turned on in the fountain. This will be good news to the public.

A VERY SAD DROWNING.

A Member of a Fishing Party Camped down the River

FALLS FROM A SLIM FOOT BRIDGE

Into a Deep and Swollen Stream, and is Drowned—He was a Popular Young Wheeling Potter—The Remains Recovered and Brought to the City for Interment to-day.

A very sad drowning occurred down the river, not far from Powhatan, Tuesday evening, the victim being a popular young member of a fishing party composed of pottery employees of South Wheeling. The boys are in camp not far from Powhatan, but to reach that village it is necessary to cross a deep and wide ravine, through which runs a swollen stream. The only way to cross this is on a narrow foot bridge, made of a single thick log, hewn smooth on one side.

On Tuesday the party ran out of some article, and Joe Share, who was "steward" of the camp, and a friend went to Powhatan and laid in a supply. In crossing the foot log on the return, Share's hands were occupied in carrying several packages, so that he could not clutch the railing. He missed his footing and fell headlong into the turbid stream at the bottom of the ravine. His companion attempted to rescue him, but the body was swept beyond his reach.

The body was recovered and brought to this city for interment. The funeral will take place this afternoon. The sad occurrence cast a gloom over the whole party, as well as over other camps, which are pretty close together in that vicinity.

Share worked for the Wheeling Pottery company, and boarded with Mrs. McBride, on Jacob street, below Thirty-first. He was from England, had been in Wheeling about eight years, and so far as is known had no relatives in this country.

After his death a letter came from his mother, in England, urging him to hasten home lest something might occur to prevent his return.

Drownings are rare in the fishing camps, and it has often been a matter of remark that it is strange that there are not more of them.

Thought to be a Wheeling Man.

Chief of Police McNichol yesterday received a telegram from the coroner of Washington county, Ohio, saying that the body of a drowned man had been found floating in the river at Marietta, and for some reason, not explained in the dispatch, it was supposed to be the body of Matthew Roush, of Wheeling. Although there are people here by that name, none of them are named in the city directory, and nobody could be found yesterday who knew such a person as Matthew.

U. S. Terriers Entertained.

Miss Dode Oliver pleasantly entertained the U. S. Terriers at her home on the Island last evening in honor of her visitor, Miss Jessie Delaney, of Barnesville, O. Miss Delaney will leave for home some time this week, much to the regret of the Terrier boys. It seems as though the young lady friends of the boys are determined not to be outdone, and they have mapped out quite a lengthy programme of jollities. They say that they will try and balance the account with the boys for "the best time they ever had," which the Terriers helped make for them on the Fourth. The U. S. T's had arranged with their colored friend, Bill Turner, to have him on hand, and at 10 o'clock, accompanied by three of his colored brethren, he arrived, and rendered several sweet selections. William and his friends are undoubtedly the finest in the city. Splendid refreshments were served, and all present had a most delightful time. The Terriers closed the reception by singing, "Drill, ye Terriers, Drill—9990." They will visit some of their friends on this side of the river this evening.

Improvements at Moundsville.

Moundsville is to have a new hotel. It will be a handsome and commodious brick structure on a lot between the two railroad stations.

The People's Building and Investment company is making arrangements to build ten new residences on lots which it owns on Center street. The completion of the cotton factory and the removal of its workmen to the city will create a demand for houses.

Nine new residences are in course of construction on Tomlinson avenue. They are as follows: Wm. Woodburn, W. J. Burley, W. B. Humphreys, J. L. Beam, Wm. P. McDonald, W. B. Pack, W. D. Alexander, T. J. Scott and J. C. Bardall. These will all be splendid residences, well finished and a credit to any city.

Italians take Strikers' Places.

The John Porter Brick Company, of New Cumberland, Tuesday put to work 500 Italians to take the places of the striking laborers in the big pottery and sewer pipe works. This move on the part of the company has caused great excitement and serious trouble is anticipated. The strikers are said to be violent, and an attack upon some of the workers would not be unexpected.
